Thanks for your interest . . .

Along with the literature on the products in which you expressed interest, we'd like to also bring you the news that the Computer Division of Packard Bell Electronics has been acquired by the Raytheon Company.

We believe that Raytheon's resources and well established marketing and service organizations will strongly complement the excellent digital capabilities and products available within Packard Bell Computer. For our customers, this new association will provide greater service and continuing product line improvement and growth.

The computer group will become part of Raytheon's Space and Information Systems Division, and it will continue operations at the present Santa Ana location.

We appreciate your interest in us, and trust that this new relationship will prove mutually beneficial.

Sincerely,

T. J. Smith
